The Perfect Copper Project – High Grade, Robust Economics and Significant Upside Potential

- 47.7 million shares outstanding – KC in Canada, KCCFF in the US
- Market cap of approximately $24 million - $.51/share as of 4/6/18
- Current price below IPO from last December – attractive entry point
- Field season to begin shortly with constant newsflow
- Copper price at $3/pound (along with zinc at $1.50/pound) provides a tailwind for the company
- Strong management team in place to deliver on targets

Background and Summary

I introduced Kutcho Copper Corp. back in December 2017 (see link at <http://statesidereport.com/wp-content/uploads/2017/12/Introduction-to-Kutcho-Copper-Corp-December-2017.pdf>) just as the company was completing its IPO at $.65/share (which I participated in). After briefly touching $1/share in early January, the price has declined not unlike other companies with projects in northern British Columbia waiting for the Spring/Summer field season to begin in earnest. After a 50% decline in price and with a healthy list of catalysts forthcoming this year, the current share price offers investors the chance to enter below where most of the recent money came into the company. Those upcoming list of activities include:

- geotechnical drilling
- metallurgical testing
- various permitting efforts
- resource expansion drilling necessary to feed into and complete the feasibility study

Kutcho is well funded to execute on its 2018 plans. A more detailed timeline is shown below for 2018 and beyond:

Phase	2018				2019				2020
	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4	Q1
Baseline studies
Resource expansion & exploration drilling
Metallurgical process optimization program
Resource update
Feasibility Study
EA & mine permitting process
Gov't review of permit submission
Final Investment Decision									***

 Final investment decision expected 1stQ 2020.

Two recent videos provide an update by management on Kutcho and the plans for 2018. The first is from the Cambridge House conference in January (see https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bx585i_q-e4) and the second from PDAC in March (see https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Kj_yeKeESMU).

A updated fact sheet current as of March 27, 2018 can be accessed at https://www.kutcho.ca/site/assets/files/4722/kutcho_copper_fact_sheet_2018-03-27.pdf and an updated presentation can be found at https://www.kutcho.ca/site/assets/files/4628/kutcho_corporate_presentation_2018-02-20.pdf.

As a reminder, Kutcho is favorably positioned near two recently permitted mines (Red Chris and Brucejack) and has excellent infrastructure. The Kutcho project is located in northern British Columbia covering 17,060 hectares. The project can be accessed by airstrip and season roads from Hwy 37 which connects to Smithers and port facilities at Stewart.

The management team is experienced with senior executives and advisors coming from Rio Tinto, Ivanhoe Mines, Kaminak Gold and Capstone Mining among others.

Both copper ($3/pound) and zinc ($1.50/pound) remain in a bull market yet the shares of copper/zinc development projects such as Kutcho have not yet participated in this emerging bull market.

The Opportunity

The Kutcho news flow will begin shortly and the share price has consolidated where a floor looks to be set in the $.45-$.50 range. The window of opportunity to enter at favorable prices may not last much longer.
