- New target (ME-7) extends for approximately 1,200 meters by 450 meters

Summary

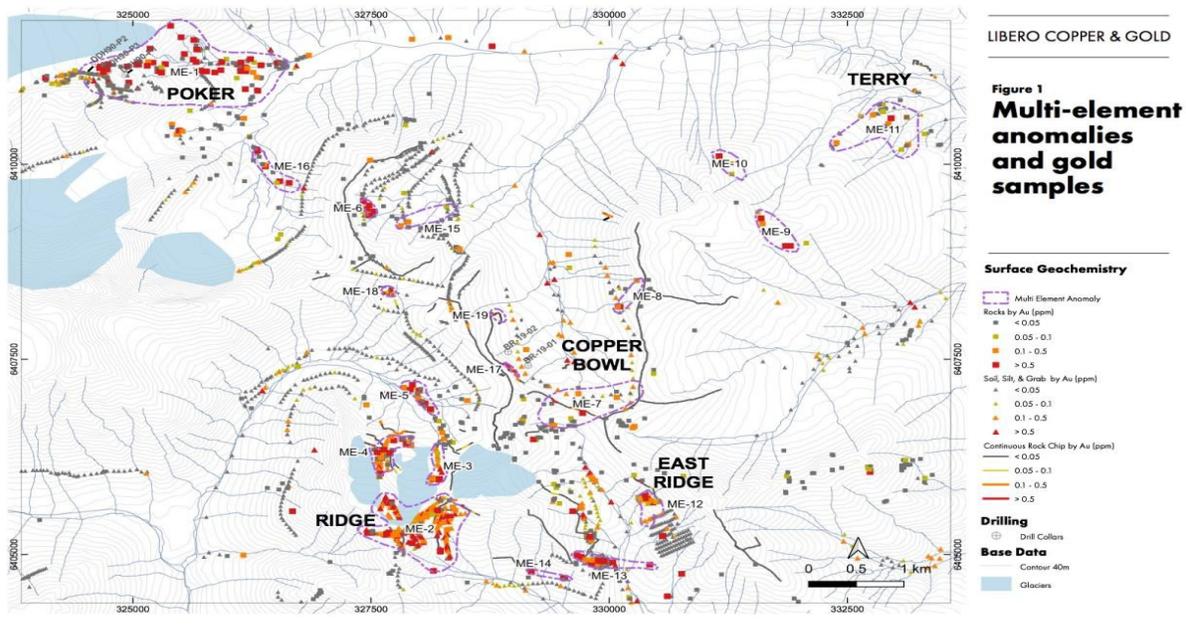

LIBERO
COPPER & GOLD

A few weeks ago Liberio announced the results of their 2019 field season at the Big Red project in the Golden Triangle region of British Columbia, Canada. The late receipt of drill permits limited the company to a small two hole drill program at the Copper Bowl area with only one hole reaching the target depth. Minor amounts of lower grade gold were intersected. A surface-wide exploration program did identify 19 new target areas.

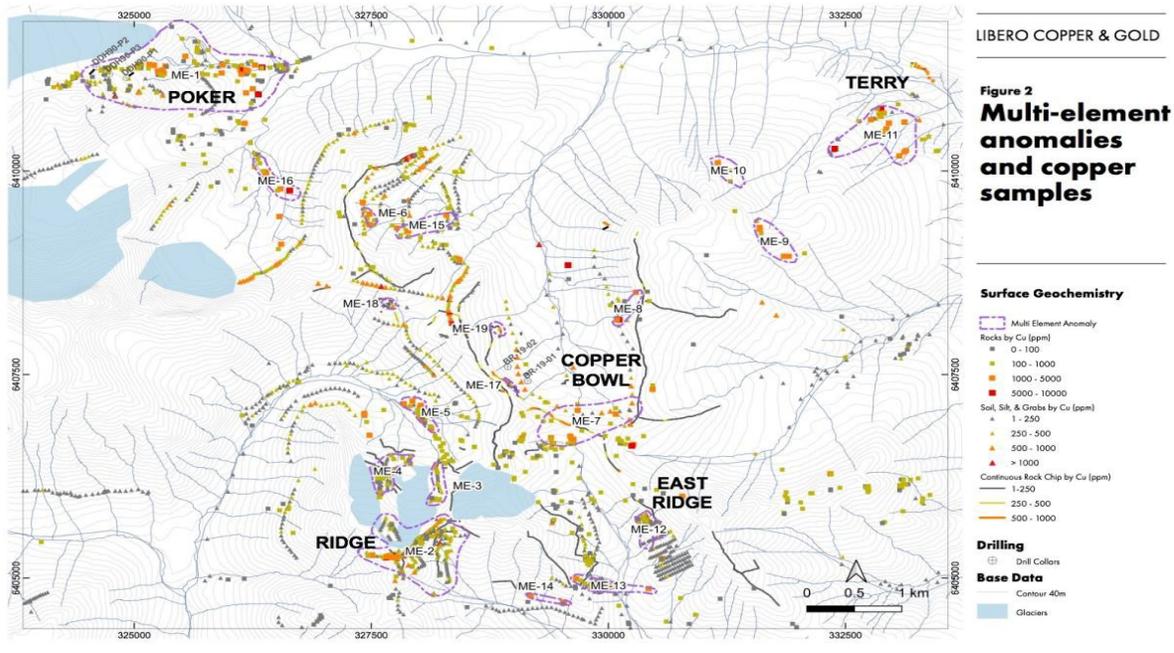

In 2020, the high grade gold Ridge target will be the focus as this area was not able to be drilled in 2019. A 2,000 meter drill program is being planned. In addition to Big Red, the large-scale Mocoa copper project in Colombia will also be drilled. Current plans call for a 13 hole, 8,500 meter drill program.

The company will be attending PDAC in early March in Toronto for those interested in discussing the 2020 plans with management. A new presentation is available at the company's website http://liberocopper.com/_resources/presentations/corporate-presentation.pdf.

The results of the 2019 field exploration program at Big Red are shown below with the following maps for both gold and copper:

Even though copper is out-of-favor at the moment, the mid to long-term fundamentals are extremely bullish. As I noted in my initial report the company is extremely undervalued vs its copper peers.

<http://statesidereport.com/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/Libero-Copper-The-Lumina-Copper-Model-with-the-Architect-that-Achieved-a-50-Bagger.pdf>,

The planned 2020 drill program will retest the high grade core, test the lateral and down plunge extensions, and test adjacent geochem anomalies.

The share price, like most other juniors with a copper focus, have lagged the past 12 months. However, with the two drilling programs planned for 2020 at both Big Red and Mocoa there should be plenty of news flow for resource investors.
